

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. 1884. SALA, 'Echoes of the Week' in Illus. London News, 4 April. 'It was in a Sydney newspaper that I read about LARRIKINS, but the term would appear to have spread throughout Australia. 'H. de S.' tells me that LARRIKIN was originally Melbourne slang, applied to rowdy youngsters, who, in the early days of the gold fever, gave much trouble to the police. 'An Australian Born' spells the word LARAKIN. . . . Finally, Archibald Forbes tells me: 'A LARRIKIN is a cross between the street Arab and the hoodlum, with a dash of the rough thrown in to improve the mixture. It was thus the term had its origin. A Sydney policeman of the Irish persuasion brought up a rowdy youngster before the local beak. Asked to describe the conduct of the misdoer, he said, 'Av if it please yer honnor, the blaggard wor a LARRAKIN' (larking) all over the place.' The expression was taken hold of and applied.'

1888. Bulletin, 24 Nov. Sergeant Jem Dalton, whose rich brogue originated the term LARRIKIN passed out of Melbourne history last week. Dalton was a born policeman, and after his friends had persuaded him to send in his resignation he turned gently over on his sick bed and died forthwith. He had nothing else to live for.

1575. GASCOGNE, Adv. Master F. J. [HAZLITT (1869), Poems, i. 463]. I am afayde my marryage will be marred, and I may go LEAD APES IN HELL.

1581. LYLY, Euphues (Arb.), 87. Rather thou shouldst leade a lyfe to thine owne lyking in earthe, than. . . LEADE APES IN HELL.

1600. SHAKESPEARE, Much Ado etc., ii. 1. Therefore I will even take sixpence in earnest of the bear-herd, and LEAD HIS APES INTO HELL.

1606. Lon. Prodgal, i. 2. 'Tis an old proverb, and you know it well, That women dying maids LEAD APES IN HELL.

1670. RAY, Proverbs (BOHN (1893), 45]. Old maids LEAD APES IN HELL.

1717. MRS. CENTILIVRE, Bold Stroke, ii. 1. Poor girl; she must certainly LEAD APES, as the saying is.

1830. GENERAL P. THOMPSON, Exerc. (1842), I. 198. Joining with other old women, in LEADING THEIR APES IN TARTARUS.

1837. BARHAM, Ingoldsby Legends, 'Bloudie Jacke.' So they say she is now LEADING APES . . . below.

LEADING ARTICLE, subs. phr. (common).—1. The nose. For synonyms see CONK.

1886. Chambers's Journal, 3 July, p. 428. Men of note almost invariably possess decided and prominent LEADING ARTICLES, whilst an insufficient nasal accompaniment not unfrequently denotes inanity.

2. (venery).—The female pu-dendum. For synonyms see MONOSYLLABLE.

LEAF, subs. (American thieves').—See quot.

1859. MATSELL, Vocabulum, s.v. LEAF, . . . 'I will be out in the LEAF,' 'I will be out in the autumn.'

TO GO OFF WITH THE FALL OF THE LEAF, verb. phr. (Irish).—See quot.

1785. GROSSE, Vulg. Tongue, s.v. LEAF, TO GO OFF WITH THE FALL OF THE LEAF, to be hanged; criminals hanged in Dublin, being turned off from the outside of the prison, by the falling of a board, propped up, and moving on a hinge like the leaf of a table.

LEAFLESS-TREE, subs. (Old Cant).—

The gallows. For synonyms see NUBBING CHEAT. Fr. la sans-feuille.

1830. LYTTON, Paul Clifford. . . .
Oh! there never was life like the robber's . . . . And its end—why, a cheer from the crowd below, And a leap from a LEAFLESS TREE.

LEAK, subs. (venery).—The female pudendum. For synonyms see MONOSYLLABLE.

1730. GAY, Tales, 'Work for a Cooper'. Her coats rose high, her master saw—I see—he cries—(then claspt her fast) The LEAK through which my wine has past.

Verb. (American thieves').—I.
To impart a secret.—MATSELL
(1859).

2. (old).—To make water.—
GROSE (1823). Hence TO SPRING
A LEAK = to piss.

LEAKY, adj. (old).—See quots.

d.1704. LESTRANGE[Century]. Women are so LEAKY that I have hardly met with one that could not hold her breath longer than she could keep a secret.

1785. GROSE, Vulg. Tongue, s.v.
LEAKY. . . . One who cannot keep a secret is said to be LEAKY.

1859. MATSELL, Vocabulum, s.v.

TO TAKE A LEAP AT TYBURN (or IN THE DARK), verb. phr.
(old).—To be hanged.

c.1600-62. Common Cries of London (COLLIER, Roxburghe Ballads (1847),

215]. For many a proper man, . . . Doth LEAP A LEAP AT TYBURN which makes his neck to crack.

1720. DUFFY, Pills to Purge, vi. 327. All you that must take a LEAP IN THE DARK, Pity the fate of Lawson and Clark.

TO LEAP (OR JUMP) THE BOOK (OR BROOMSTICK, BROOM, BESOM, OR SWORD), verb. phr. (common).—See QUOTS.; TO DAB IT UP (q.v.); TO LIVE TALLY. Cf. RUSH-RING.

1811. POOLE, Hamlet Travestied, ii. 3. JUMP O'ER A BROOMSTICK, but don't make a farce on The marriage ceremonies of the parson.

1823. GROSE, Vulg. Tongue, 3rd ed. s.v. LEAPING OVER THE SWORD, an ancient ceremonial, said to constitute a military marriage. A sword being laid down on the ground, the parties to be married join hands when the corporal or sergeant of the company repeated these words: Leap rogue, and jump whore, And then you are married for ever more.

1851. MAYHEW, London Labour and London Poor, I. p. 336. The old woman when any female, old or young, who had no tin, came into the kitchen, made up a match for her with some men. Fellows half-drunk had the old women. There was always a BROOMSTICK wedding. Without that ceremony a couple weren't looked on as man and wife.

1859. MATSELL, Vocabulum, s.v. LEAP THE BOOK. A false marriage.

1860. DICKENS, Great Expectations, ch. xlviii. p. 227. 'They both led tramping lives, and this woman in Gerrard St. here, had been married very young, OVER THE BROOMSTICK (as we say), to a tramping man, and was a perfect fury in point of jealousy.'

1868. Cassell's Mag., 4. Jan., p. 222. I dare say that most . . . have laughed at the old joke about getting married by jumping over a broomstick, and have always thought that it was a sheer joke, and nothing else; but this is a great mistake: the ceremony—so to dignify it—of the couple LEAPING OVER A BROOMSTICK, held by the man's mates a little way from the ground, was the essential and generally recognised rite of most DAVY marriages, and was held to be binding so long as both parties were agreed—a very important qualification. There is reason to believe that this grotesque ceremony is of very ancient date.

c.18(?) Broadside Ballad, 'David Dove that Fell in Love.' The girl that I had hoped to hear Pronounce my happy doom, sir, Had bolted with a carpenter, In fact HOPPED O'ER THE BROOM, sir.

TO GO TO LEATHER, verb. phr. (American).—See quot.

1882. DODGE, Ranch Life in the Far West. After a few jumps, however, the average man grasps hold of the horn of the saddle—the delightful onlookers meanwhile earnestly advising him not to go TO LEATHER—and is contented to get through the affair in any shape, provided he can escape without being thrown off.

TO LOSE LEATHER, verb. phr. (colloquial).—To be saddle-galled. —GROSE (1785).

LEATHERS, subs. (common).—A postboy.

1849. THACKERAY, Pendennis, ch. xx. 'Come along; jump in, old boy—go it, LEATHERS!' and in this way Pen found himself in Mr. Spavin's postchaise.

LEATHERHEAD, subs. (old).—1. A swindler. For synonyms see ROOK.

1690. B. E., Dict. Cant. Crew, s.v.

1884. PHILLIPS WOOLLEY, Trottings of a Tenderfoot. Now the Senator is only a LEATHERHEAD who made his pile by such and such a swindle.

2. (old: American).—A policeman or watchman.

1882. McCABE, New York, xxiii. 369. During the British occupation of the city, in the war of Independence, military patrols kept the streets at night . . . After the close of the war a patrol of civilians was appointed. . . . They wore a leather hat with a wide brim, something like a fireman's hat, and this won for them the name of LEATHERHEADS.

1888. New York Mercury, 21 July. Here the old police or LEATHERHEADS tried to restrain them, but in vain. Hostilities took place, several of the police were killed and several mortally wounded.

—Used in negation of a statement, and sometimes accompanied by pointing the thumb over the left shoulder: in FLORIO 'in my other hose'. It. scolli. The expression occurs also in le Parnasse Satyrique (1611). Cf. LEFT-HANDED.

1682. Preface to Julian the Apostate (London, printed for Langley Curtis). What benefit a Popish successor can reap from lives and fortunes spent in defence of the Protestant religion he may put in his eye; and what the Protestant religion gets by lives and fortunes spent in the service of a Popish successor will be OVER THE LEFT SHOULDER.

1705. Record of Country Court held in Hartford (U.S.A.), 4 Sept. The said Waters, as he departed from the table, said, 'God bless you OVER THE LEFT SHOULDER.' The court ordered a record thereof to be made forthwith. A true copie.

1748. RICHARDSON, Clarissa Harlowe, i. 242. You will have an account to keep too; but an account of what will go OVER THE LEFT SHOULDER; only of what he squanders, what he borrows, and what he owes and never will pay.

1841. Punch, i. 37, col. 2. I am thine, and thine only! Thine!—OVER THE LEFT.

1843. W. T. MONCRIEFF, The Scamps of London, i. 1. I think she will come. Ned. Yes, OVER THE LEFT—ha, ha, ha!

1870. H. D. TRAILL, Saturday Songs, 'On the Watch,' p. 22. Eh, waddyer say? Don't go? Ho yes! my right honnerble friend, It's go and go OVER THE LEFT. . . . it's go with a hook at the end.

LEG, subs. (common).—1. A swindling gamester.

1836. DICKENS, Pickwick, xlii. 365. 'He was a horse-chaunter: he's a LEO now.'

1840. THACKERAY, Character Sketches (Capt. Rook and Mr. Pigeon). As for Tom, he is a regular LEO now—leading the life already described. When I met him last it was at Baden, where he was on a professional tour, with a carriage, a courier, a valet, a confederate, and a case of pistols.

1848. W. T. MONCRIEFF, The Scamps of London, i. 1. He's your brother, Mr. Frank; but there isn't a bigger LEO on the whole pavement.

1851-61. MAYHEW, Lond. Lab., i. 501. Now and then a regular LEO, when he's travelling to Chester, York, or Doncaster, to the races, may draw other passengers into play, and make a trifle, or not a trifle, by it; or he will play with other LEGS; but it's generally for amusement, I've reason to believe.

1859. MATSELL, Vocabulum, s.v. LEO, a gambler.

1866. London Miscellany, 5 May, p. 201. The two who were not of their race were of the genus LEO.

'Like to this [the Stocks of which he has just given a description] there is another like place of Punishment in our House of Correction in Chester (the like to it I have not heard in any other place) it is called the LITTLE EASE, a place cut into a Rock, with a Grate Door before it; into this place are put Renegadoes, Apprentices, &c. that disobey their Parents and Masters, Robbers of Orchards, and such like Rebellious Youths; in which they can neither Stand, Sit, Kneel, nor lie down, but be all in a ruck, or knit together, so and in such a Lamentable Condition, that half an hour will tame the Stoutest and Stubbornest Stomach, and will make him have a desire to be freed from the place.'

1733. Abstract of the Sufferings of the People called Quakers etc.
Footnote. 'This LITTLE EASE was a hole

Straw; STROMMEL (g.v.). Fr. plausser sur plume de Beauce = to sleep in the straw.

1879. Correspondent of Notes & Queries, 5 S. xii. 246. Is this bit of ironical slang worth preserving? An old man, lately emerged from what we North-countrymen call the 'Bastile,' objected in my hearing to that institution, because, inter alia, 'you had to sleep there on LONG FEATHERS,' that is, upon bedding stuffed with straw.

LONG-FIRM, subs. (common).—See quot. 1869. Fr. la bande noire.

A somewhat similar mode of swindling is described in PARKER'S View of Society (ii. 33. 1781).

1869. Orchestra, 2 Jan., 235, i. Dismal records of the doings of the LONG FIRM, a body of phantom capitalists who issue large orders to supply an infinite variety of goods—from herrings to harmoniums, from cotton-twist to pictures; the ledger of the LONG FIRM has room for the most multifarious transactions. The rule of procedure with the LONG FIRM is simple: a noble order, a moderate sum paid on account, bills for the remainder, an order to deliver the goods at some country warehouse or depository—and exit Montague Tigg. In the next town he changes his name and his partner's, and repeats the operation. From Liverpool and Manchester he flings the bait to London tradesmen, and now and then a fish is hooked.

1886. Daily News, 20 Sept., 7, 1. This was the usual case of what is termed LONG FIRM swindling. The prisoner pretended to carry on business in the city, and ordered goods of all descriptions, which were never used for legitimate purposes, but which were immediately pawned or otherwise disposed of.

1892. Pall Mall Gazette, 17 Oct., p. 5, c. 2. Not a few of the most dangerous of the LONG FIRM class (and there are some about at the present time) haunt the locality, as our criminal courts of justice revealed only a few months ago.

LONG-GHOST, subs. (common).—A gawk. For synonyms see LAMP-POST.

LONG-GLASS, subs. (Eton College).—See quot.

1883. BRINSLEY-RICHARDS, Seven Years at Eton, 321. A glass nearly a yard long, shaped like the horn of a stage-coach guard, and with a hollow globe instead of a foot. It held a quart of beer, and the ceremony of drinking out of it constituted an initiation into the higher circle of Etonian swelldom. There was LONG-GLASS drinking once or twice a week during the summer half. The invités attended in an upper room of Tap after two, and each before the long glass was handed to him had a napkin tied round his neck. It was considered a grand thing to drain the glass without removing it from the lips, and without spilling any of its contents. This was difficult, because when the contents of the tubular portion of the glass had been sucked down, the beer in the globe would remain for a moment as if congealed there : then if the drinker tilted the glass up a little, and shook it, the motionless beer would give a gurgle and come with a sudden rush all over his face. There was a way of holding the long glass at a certain angle by which catastrophes were avoided. Some boys could toss off their quart of ale in quite superior style, and I may as well remark that these clever fellows could do little else.

and the Six Hundred say if they were deprived of their favourite occupation because a few weak-kneed fellow-townsmen had been caught pocketing the guineas of some MAN IN THE MOON.

1889. Daily Telegraph, 25 Nov.
Formerly bribery and corruption were personal. On or before the election day a mysterious stranger descended on the town, and took up his abode in a retired chamber of a private inn. The word was sent round, and there repaired to his presence quietly, and one by one, those undecided electors who were reported to have an itching palm. In many boroughs this stranger was called The MAN IN THE MOON, perhaps on account of the 'silver lining' to the voters' pockets which resulted from his hidden rays.

MRS. PARTINGTON, subs. phr. (colloquial).—A personification of impotent and senile prejudice. Also, a kind of Malaprop.

1831. SYDNEY SMITH, 'Speech at Taunton.' I do not mean to be disrespectful; but the attempt of the lords to stop the progress of reform reminds me very forcibly of the great storm of Sidmouth, and the conduct of the excellent MRS. Partington on that occasion. In the winter of 1824, there set in a great flood upon that town; the tide rose to an incredible height; the waves rushed in upon the houses; and everything was threatened with destruction. In the midst of this sublime storm, Dame Partington, who lived upon the beach, was seen at the door of her house with mop and pattens, trundling her mop, squeezing out the seawater, and vigorously pushing away the Atlantic Ocean. The Atlantic was roused; Mrs. Partington's spirit was up; but I need not tell you that the contest was unequal. The Atlantic beat Mrs. Partington. She was excellent at a slop or puddle, but should never have meddled with a tempest.

2. (racing).—See quot.

1865. Sporting Gazette, 1 April. If this letter had not already reached a considerable length, I would discourse upon the probability that to RUN A MUCK, and to go A MUCKER, which Mr. Hotten treats as synonymous, are in reality unconnected. The meaning and derivation of to RUN A MUCK are no doubt correctly given; but to go A MUCKER as men frequently do on the Turf, seems to be connected with muck, to clean out, and perhaps with muckinger, a pocket handkerchief.

TO GO (OR RUN) A MUCK (OR A MUCKER), verb. phr. (common).

—To go headlong; also to be recklessly extravagant; to run AMOK (q.v.). [Stanford Dict. The homicidal frenzy (of a Malay), used originally in Port. forms amouca, amuco; hence, in a homicidal frenzy, furiously, viciously; metaphorically, headlong. MUFFIN, snds. (American).—1. See quot.

1870. JOHN WHITE, Sketches from America [BARTLETT]. When a man, availing himself of the custom of the country, has secured a young lady for the season, to share with him his sleigh-driving and other of the national amusements, in Canadian phrase she is called his MUFFIN. Her status is a sort of temporary wifehood, limited, of course, by many obvious restrictions, but resembling wifehood in this, that, though a close and continuous relationship, it has nothing in it which shocks, and much in it which allures, the Canadian mind. Among the British commodities exported to our colonies, 'la pruderie Anglaise' does not find a place. The origin of the term MUFFIN seems to be wrapped in obscurity.

2. See MUFF, snds. sense 1.

COLD MUFFIN, phr. (common).
—Poor; of no account.

1892. MILLIKEN, 'Arny Ballads, p. 36. I thought the theayter COLD MUFFIN.

1838. DICKENS, Oliver Twist, vi. His jealousy was roused by seeing the new boy promoted to the black stick and hatband, while he, the old one, remained stationary in the MUFFIN-CAP and leathers.

1872. Daily Telegraph, 4 July. The Americans, indeed, appear to have a peculiar fondness for the 'busby' and the MUFF-CAP as items of military head-gear, distinctly preferring them to the helmet.

MUFFIN-FACE, adj. and snds. (common).—A hairless countenance.
See quot. 1823.

1777. ISAAC JACKMAN, All the World's a Stage, i. 2. Master Charles, who is that gentleman? He's acting, isn't he? Has he a MUFFIN-FACE?

1823. BEE, Dict. Turf, s.v. MUFFIN-FACED—one who has large protruding muscles on his phis, which is pale withal, is 'a MUFFIN-FACED son of a—'; mostly cooks, idle gourmands, &c. who delight in fat, soups, and slip-slops, evolve mutton-faces.

MUFFING, adj. (common).—Bungling; clumsy.

1851-61. H. MAYHEW, London Lab., iii. 62. 'You can pick out a good many Punch performers, without getting one so well versed as I am in it; they in general makes such a MUFFING concern of it.'

3. (theatrical).—See MUG, verb., sense 2.

1871. London Figaro, 17 Mar. A collection of judicious and injudicious gags might prove as edifying as a selection of good and bad performances; although, on the whole, it is a dangerous custom, and one which is assuredly 'more honoured in the breach than the observance.' Judicious MUGGING is, perhaps, the more harmless of the two.

MUGGINS, subs. (common).—1. A fool. For synonyms see BUFFLE and CABBAGE-HEAD.

2. (common).—A borough-magnate; a local leader.

MUGGLED, adj. (thieves').—A term applied to 'cheap' trash offered for sale as smuggled goods.

1888. Times, 1 Feb., p. 12. col. 2. Remember the many epithets applied to those who, not content with doing their work, commit the heinous offence of being absorbed in it. Every school, every college has had its choice nickname, for this unfortunate class . . . such as a 'sap', a 'smug', a 'swot', a 'bloke', a MUOSTER.

MUG-TRAP, subs. (common).—A fool-catcher.

1892. MILLIKEN, 'Arny Ballads, 75. The 'D. T.' is a regular MUG-TRAP.

MUGWUMP, subs. (American).—1. A man of consequence. Hence (2) one who sets himself up as better than his fellows; (3) an independent Republican, who, in 1884 openly refused to vote for the party nominee; and (4) a citizen who declines to take any part in politics. See quotes. 1887 and 1896.

1840. Great Western, 4 July, 'Leader'. Then the great MUGWUMP was delivered of a speech which the faithful loudly applauded.

1887. Cornhill Mag., June, p. 626. MUGWUMP . . . is now generally applied to those who profess to study the interests of their country before those of their party.

1888. NORTON, Political Americanisms, s.v. After the Independent movement was started, the word was launched on its career of popularity. The Critic of September 6th, 1884, contained a note to the effect that the word was of Algonquin origin, and occurred in Elliott's Indian Bible, being used to translate such titles as lord, high-captain, chief, great man, leader, or duke. In Matthew vi. 21, it occurs as MUKXUOMP; and again in Genesis xxxvi. 40-43, and several times in II. Samuel xxiii. As is frequently the case in American politics, the word was used as a term of derision and reproach by one section, and accepted with a half-humorous sense of its aptness by the other.

1890. MORTON FREWIN, in National Review, Jan., p. 600. A nucleus of pretentious political thinkers who get together to discuss counsels of perfection. These superior beings . . . are described in the latest editions of American dictionaries as MUGWUMPS.

Verb. (American).—To abstain from politics.

Also MUGWUMPERY and MUGWUMPISM = the habit of MUGWUMPING.

1896. MORTON FREWIN, in National Review, Jan., p. 600. I fear, however, that the warm heart of MUGWUMPERY will no longer follow that idol which had been shattered prematurely in 1884 but for this handful of its votaries.

MULE, subs. (colloquial).—1. An obstinate person, male or female.

1891. W. C. RUSSELL, Ocean Tragedy, 131. I saw that he was a MULE of a man.

2. (colloquial).—An impotent man.

3. (printers').—A day hand in the composing-room.

TO SHOE ONE'S MULE, verb. phr. (old).—To embezzle.

1889. Answers, 11 May, p. 374. The 'clobber' (old clothes) which have been presented by charitable persons are exchanged and sold, broken meat and scraps of bread ('Bull and MUNJARI' they are called) are given out liberally, and the blind men and cripples are the jolliest crowd imaginable.

1893. EMERSON, Signor Lippo, x. I . . . went to one of my regular padding-kens to sell the MUNGARLY to some of the needies there for nova soldi. Ibid. 12. Chuck it, we'll go and have a bit of MUNGARLY now.

MUNGARLY-CASA, subs. (thieves').—See quot.

1864. Times, 18 Oct. Another curious instance of the prevalence of this Lingua Franca is the word Mungarly, as representing bread or food. MUNGARLY CASA is a baker's shop, evidently a corruption of some Lingua Franca phrase for an eating-house. The well-known Nix Mangiare stairs at Malta derive their name from the endless beggars who lie there and shout 'Nix Mangiare,' i.e., 'Nothing to eat,' to excite the compassion of the English who land there—an expression which exhibits remarkably the mongrel composition of the Lingua Franca, mangiare being Italian, and nix an evident importation from Trieste or other Austrian seaport.

MUNPIN, subs. (old).—In pl. = the teeth. For synonyms see GRINDERS.

d.1450. LYDGATE, Minor Poems, p. 30. Thy MONE-PYNNES bene lyche old yuong.

MUSH (MUSH-TOPPER or MUSH-ROOM), subs. (common).—1. See quots.

1821. HAGGART, Life, 62. In one shop they robbed two MUSH-TOPERS.

1856. H. MAYHEW, Gt. World of London, p. 6, note. Fanciful metaphors contribute largely to the formation of slang. It is upon this principle that the mouth has come to be styled the 'tater-trap'; . . . umbrellas, 'MUSHROOMS' (or, briefly 'MUSH').

1859. MATSELL, Vocabulum, s.v. Mush. An umbrella; the mouth, in pugilism.

1870. London Figaro, 15 June. What pretty faces, MUSH of mine, I've sheltered 'neath thy shade! What jolly walks in 'auld lang syne' Beneath thy ribs I've made!

MUSH- (or MUSHROOM-) FAKER (or MUSH-TOPPER-FAKER). — See quot. 1851. MUSHFAKING = mending umbrellas.

1821. HAGGART, Life, 56. Tommy Twenty, a MUSH-TOPPER-FAKER.

1851-61. H. MAYHEW, London Lab., ii. 28. In Umbrellas and Parasols the second-hand traffic is large, but those vended in the streets are nearly all 'done up' for street-sale by the class known as MUSH or more properly MUSHROOM FAKERS. Idem., ii. 127. The umbrella-menders are known by an appellation of an appropriateness not uncommon in street language. They are MUSHROOM-FAKERS. The form of the expanded umbrella resembles that of a mushroom, and it has the further characteristic of being rapidly or suddenly raised, the MUSHROOM itself springing up and attaining its full size in a very brief space of time. The term, however, like all street or popular terms or phrases, has become very generally condensed among those who carry on the trade—they are now MUSH-FAKERS, a word which, to any one who has not heard the term in full, is as meaningless as any in the vocabulary of slang.

1893. EMERSON, Signor Lippo, 91. My old man . . . got his dudder by chinay-faking and MUSH-FAKING.

MUSHROOM, subs. (common).—1. A hat.

2. (venery).—The female pu-dendum. For synonyms see MONOSYLLABLE.

3. (old).—See quots.
